

Privacy Policy

Somersault Studios recognizes that we must protect the information communicated to us by website users, project partners and all with whom we communicate. Our privacy policy meets widely-used standards to ensure that the extensive legal and regulatory requirements which safeguard website users, partners and others' interests.

We do not seek to identify our website visitors or collect information regarding their use of the site. In order to improve the functionality of the website, we may track which pages you visit or for how long but we do not use this information to identify a unique website user.

Where website visitors do provide us with information, such as through message forms, we will only use it for the stated purposes and ensure that it is only available to those with a legitimate need to have access to it.

We reserve the right to share your information with other entities related to Somersault Studios' activities as permitted by law. We will not otherwise share your personal information with external third parties without your consent, except where required or permitted by law. When making the disclosures referred to above, we may transfer your information to countries which have a lower standard of data protection than in your home jurisdiction. Wherever practicable, however, we will require the recipients to provide an appropriate level of protection for your information.

We will only retain information about you for as long as necessary to fulfil the purpose for which it was collected or to comply with legal or internal policy requirements. However, if a website visitor wants his or her personal data removed from our databases, we will delete their information upon written request, so long as permitted by legal and regulatory rules.

We may use "cookies" to enhance your user experience while visiting our website. Cookies are small files which are stored on your hard drive. There are two different types of cookies. Session cookies are temporary and erased when you close your browser. Persistent cookies remain on your hard drive until you erase them or they expire. We may use persistent cookies to recognize previous visitors when they return but only the cookie on your computer is identified. Most web browsers can be set to prevent you from receiving new cookies, notify you before accepting cookies or disable cookies altogether. You can delete cookies already on your hard drive at any time. If you choose to disable cookies, this may result in a reduced availability of the services provided by our website.

The terms of this notice may be revised from time to time and are subject to any particular contractual terms you have entered into with us. It is not applicable to any websites controlled by third parties not affiliated with Somersault Studios.